

R. Maxine McBride-Jackson

R. Maxine McBride-Jackson currently serves as the office manager for Family Nutrition Education Program (FNEP) of University of Missouri Cooperative Extension Service, located in St. Louis (Central West End). In this role, Mrs. McBride-Jackson oversees day-to-day operations of the FNEP nutrition education program delivered in the St. Louis Public Schools, homeless shelters, Head Start for St. Louis City and County Adult Literacy Groups, Probation & Parole and several other organizations. She is the founder of Maxi-Ray Medical Services (1988-1996), and provided oversight for the organization of patient's medical records, processed release of medical information requests, patient scheduling and general patient care. She has provided consulting services for pre-employment examinations to the Federal Aviation Association, Missouri Department of Transportation and St. Louis Public Schools, 1972-1988. Mrs. McBride-Jackson has served on numerous committees and advisory boards, such as the Jahidi White Professional Basketball Youth Development Camps, which encompassed organizing youth development efforts across several urban cities in the US including Washington, DC., Phoenix, AZ, and Charlotte, NC. She is also an active member of the National Benevolent Association of Seniors.

Mrs. McBride-Jackson's educational training includes attending Tuskegee University, with additional training in Medical and Business Administration. She is married to Dr. Ron D. Jackson, DDM, and they share in their union four adult children and five grandchildren.

